FOREWORD

Glowing warmly in every dark corner, the flaming torch, a symbol of liberty enjoyed by the participants in a free society, provides a challenge needed to encourage awareness in the citizens of America. If each individual would accept his responsibilities in safeguarding such a precious possession as freedom, how much more secure would be the future of generations to come!

Miss Raffo gives a yell during an exciting moment of a Jayem basketball game.

Dedication

Devoting her time and her talents to the education of future business leaders, Miss H. Arnita Raffo has not only inspired her students by patient instruction and wise advice but also has participated in numerous student activities. How often have we seen her enjoying the football games during each season or cheering the basketball team to victory! It is in appreciation for her invaluable position as a teacher and a friend that we, the students of John Marshall High School, dedicate the 1963 MARSHALLITE to Miss Raffo.

Miss Raffo demonstrates her shorthand skill as she writes, "Let Freedom Ring!"

Whether it be a heated classroom discussion or merely a casual conversation with friends, the sharing of varied opinions and ideals is exemplary of one freedom often taken for granted—the freedom to teach. Although this liberty, now a vital part of the American way of life, is frequently employed, the obligation entailed with its use is sometimes carelessly overlooked. Today, as always, our teachers are assuming responsibility for instilling proper attitudes in the student.

Secretaries

A secretary's job is an important, interesting, and responsible one. Our secretaries perform efficiently a wide variety of office jobs. Some of these are: typing, filing, taking dictation, duplicating, answering telephones, writing letters, making out reports, and meeting callers. With all the many hourly interruptions, they manage to perform their duties; to keep the office running smoothly; and to represent John Marshall High School in a calm, courteous, and efficient manner.

Guidance

The Guidance Program is a set of organized services designed to: assist all pupils in making appropriate and satisfying educational. vocational, personal-social adjustments and plans, assist administrators, teachers, other staff members, and parents in understanding the needs and problems of pupils.

Students use the card catalogue to locate books.

Librarians

The library with its many resources—books, magazines, filmstrips, and various other media—is the teaching materials center of the school, serving faculty and students in all phases of the instructional program.

It offers to each a source of inspiration, information, and relaxation; a place in which to browse, select and so develop an appreciation of books and libraries; and an opportunity to acquire, both formally and informally, valuable skills in the use of library facilities.

Nurse

The Medical Department tries to give students the opportunity to develop as far as possible physically, mentally, emotionally, and socially, so that they may give and get as much happiness and satisfaction out of life as possible.

To accomplish this purpose, health examinations by the school physician and the nurse are given to juniors, new students, and members of all athletic teams. Seniors are X-rayed each year. Students with defects are referred to their physicians, dentists, or clinics. During the school day, the nurse gives emergency care to any sick or injured students and notifies the parents if necessary.

English

Required English courses are offered each year to increase the student's understanding and appreciation of literature, and his knowledge of the fundamentals of composition and grammar. Through a study of the skills of reading, writing, speaking, and listening, the student becomes more proficient in interpreting the spoken and written ideas of others and in expressing his own ideas more clearly and concisely.

History

The history department endeavors to adapt its courses to provide the fundamental knowledge students will need to cope with problems in an increasingly complex and rapidly changing world. Our contribution for 1962-63 has been the revised full year course for seniors integrating government, economics, Freedom versus Communism, and foreign affairs.

Your scholastic and citizenship record in college, and your active participation and leadership in church, civic, and business affairs will test the practical application of this new effort.

Mathematics

There are three definite tracks in the mathematics courses offered at John Marshall.

Those students who are both very able and willing are selected in the sixth and seventh grades and are given an accelerated course in arithmetic. In the eighth grade, they have first year algebra, which they follow with intermediate algebra in the ninth grade. Next they have plane and solid geometry together in their sophomore year. When they are juniors, they study trigonometry, college algebra, and analytics. Their senior year is given over to calculus.

For the regular college preparatory diploma, and for those students in the elective course who wish to choose it, John Marshall offers the traditional two years of algebra, plane geometry, and either trigonometry and solid geometry, or trigonometry and college algebra.

The students who do not elect these courses may choose general mathematics in the ninth, tenth and eleventh grades.

The mathematics in every course is taught so as to help the student discover valuable information and develop a habit of logical reasoning and critical thinking.

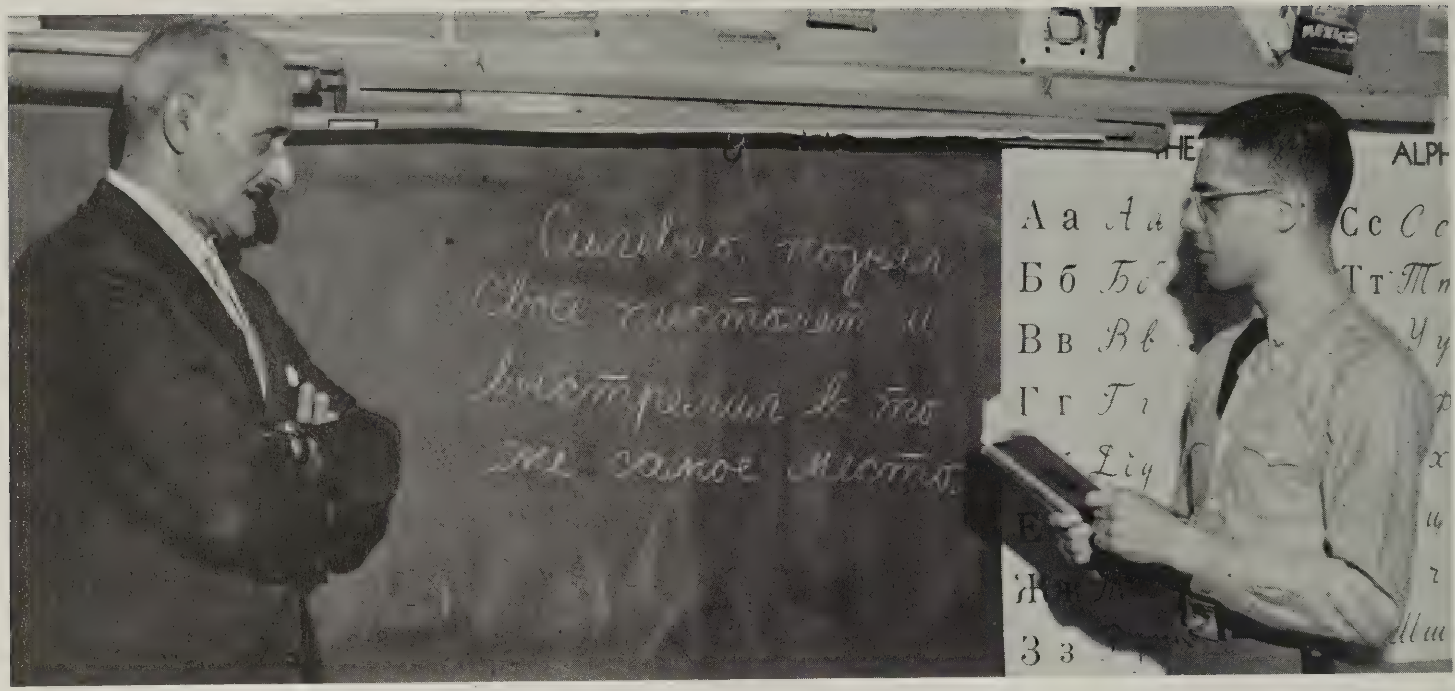
Using plastic blocks, geometry students illustrate the formula for the volume of a pyramid.



Doug Nelson explains his Russian sentence to Mr. Yacenko.

Languages

The Foreign Language Department believes that to study at least one foreign language is highly desirable and the students are urged to do so. They can choose from Latin and several modern languages: French, German, Russian, and Spanish. To gain fluency in the modern languages, the student has access to a well-equipped language laboratory containing thirty-six booths and tapes, records, and filmstrips to be used with the textbooks. Also John Marshall is the first school in Virginia to offer a class in the newest method of studying French, "Voix et Images," approved by the French government.

Eva Layne and Peter Boggs dissect a frog in their sophomore biology class.

Science

The science department occupies one wing in the building. It has modern, up-to-date equipment, including direct and alternating current and natural gas at the various student stations, a refrigerator, animal cages and incubators. Sun decks furnish additional space for growing plants and animals in the warmer weather.

Here various science courses are offered. On the ninth grade level, there is a one-semester course in astronomy and earth science and another in chemistry. Both of these are, for the most part, non-laboratory courses designed to give the students general understanding of the universe and matter. The other sciences have laboratory work to accompany the class work. Biology is usually studied in the tenth grade, while chemistry and physics are placed in the eleventh and twelfth grades.

However, some of the students are accelerated. Having completed the ninth grade science before they come here, they study biology, chemistry and physics a year earlier than the other students. Then, in their senior year, they take an advanced chemistry class, which is offered on the college level.

Business

The following courses are offered for personal and on-the-job use by the business department: general business 9, business mathematics 10, typewriting 10 and 11, shorthand 11 and 12, and clerical practice 11 and 12.

Students are encouraged to become vocationally competent in at least one of the three fields of specialization: stenographic, bookkeeping, or clerical.

Those preparing for college are advised to take as many business subjects as their schedule will allow.

Work Coordinators

The cooperative training programs give training in job skills, human relations, and economic understandings. Students during their junior and senior years have an opportunity to be placed in entrance jobs of the business world to receive supervised training which is coordinated by the school. A large faculty of down-town teachers cooperate in giving industrial, retailing, and office training.

Home Economics

In home economics emphasis is placed on the importance of family living and an understanding of what makes a successful home. Furthermore, it teaches a student how to use resources already available in the home and the application of homemaking skills in his daily tasks. Such a student can plan judiciously as well as make wise choices. His relationships with his family and friends will be most satisfying.

Marshallites receive prompt service and good food.

Cafeteria

The cafeteria is interwoven in the activities of the school. The cafeteria manager and her staff work with the student body in their many social activities, and have a nutritional and educational program designed especially for the high school age group. On many occasions the cafeteria acts as hostess for the guests that come to John Marshall.

Industrial Arts

The Industrial Arts program provides the opportunity for students to acquire first hand knowledge through the practical application of tools, machines, processes, materials, and products incident to industry. It involves experimentation with materials and processes, invention of mechanical devices and ideas, investigations of facts and techniques, and similar activities stimulating to youthful interest and curiosity.

Sight Saving

The Sight Saving program is available to high school students who are handicapped by poor vision. Each student in this program is scheduled for at least one period a day in a special resource room. Unglazed paper, a large print typewriter, a projection magnifier, a talking book, adjustable desks, and other equipment help to make school work less taxing on eyes.

Music

"Sit up straight—move forward in your chair—think high." These are some of the instructions members of the voice classes hear each day from Mr. Cooke.

Learning to perform choral music on a professional level requires a great deal of hard work. However, the joy of accomplishment after a good performance makes it all worthwhile.

Art

The study of art begins with a survey course designed to introduce all fields of art, proceeds through jewelry, ceramics, crafts, oil painting and for the advanced student, a program of independent research and work.

Advanced students, in addition to regular classes, do the art work for THE MARSHALLITE, THE MONOCLE, display cases, pep rallies, sporting events, the operetta, both proms, and print hundreds of posters each year.

Bill Nelson and Pearl Halstead put on display some of their work.

Jimmy Hiner uses the acetylene torch to weld a ring in jewelry class.

Military

High School Cadet training under the National Defense Cadet Corps Act is designed to produce young men who will become good citizen-soldiers and leaders in their community. To accomplish this end a three year course of study is offered in the following: leadership, drill, command, customs, courtesies, traditions, discipline, organization, marksmanship, and a few technical subjects. The many hours involved in this instruction are to instill in the cadets such leadership qualities as alertness, promptness, obedience, loyalty, courtesy, and self-control. These attributes, in the words of the cadet prayer, teach them to acquit themselves like men. Life in the corps of cadets can be summarized in no better way than through its cherished motto: Duty—Honor—Country.

Physical Education

Learning, a continuous process, is a satisfying, rewarding freedom appreciated by those who show enough initiative to work towards self-improvement. Necessity is the chief reason compelling us to learn. During life unfamiliar situations, seemingly insoluble problems, and moments of indecision confront all men. Relying on past experiences, each well-informed person should have the satisfaction of being able to cope with any unusual circumstances.

IN MEMORIAM

She lived her life with zest and vitality; it ended quietly like the dying embers of a fire.

Esther's humor and wit were loved by all who knew her. Her spontaneous smile and laughter delighted her classmates.

Not only was Esther talented in music, but also in art and writing, using them as a means of expression. Among her varied interests was her love of animals, especially horses. She revealed her high intelligence through consistent Honor Roll grades.

God gave Esther numerous gifts and abilities, and she used them well. The example she set during her short life should serve as an inspiration to every Marshallite.

Long-remembered are the proms, the assemblies, and the traditional festivities held through the years at John Marshall. Student participation in the extracurricular program has not only widened the areas of activity but also has resulted in many lasting friendships. With such a well-developed program now in existence, the interest and the contributions of the students will always remain an integral part of the school.

ACTIVITIES:
FREEDOM

TO PARTICIPATE

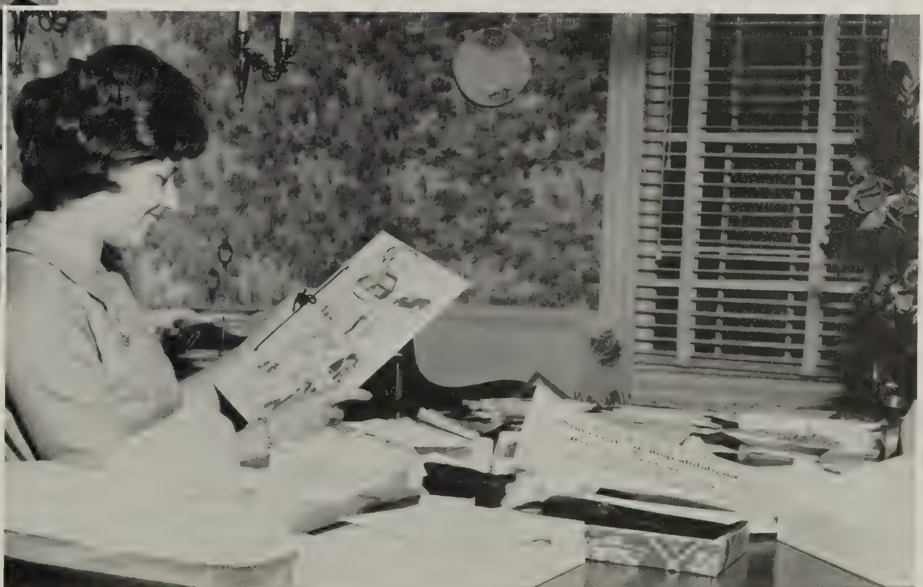
Grace chats at home with the Reynolds, her American family.

Grace greets Chip Boggs on the night of the Senior-Junior.

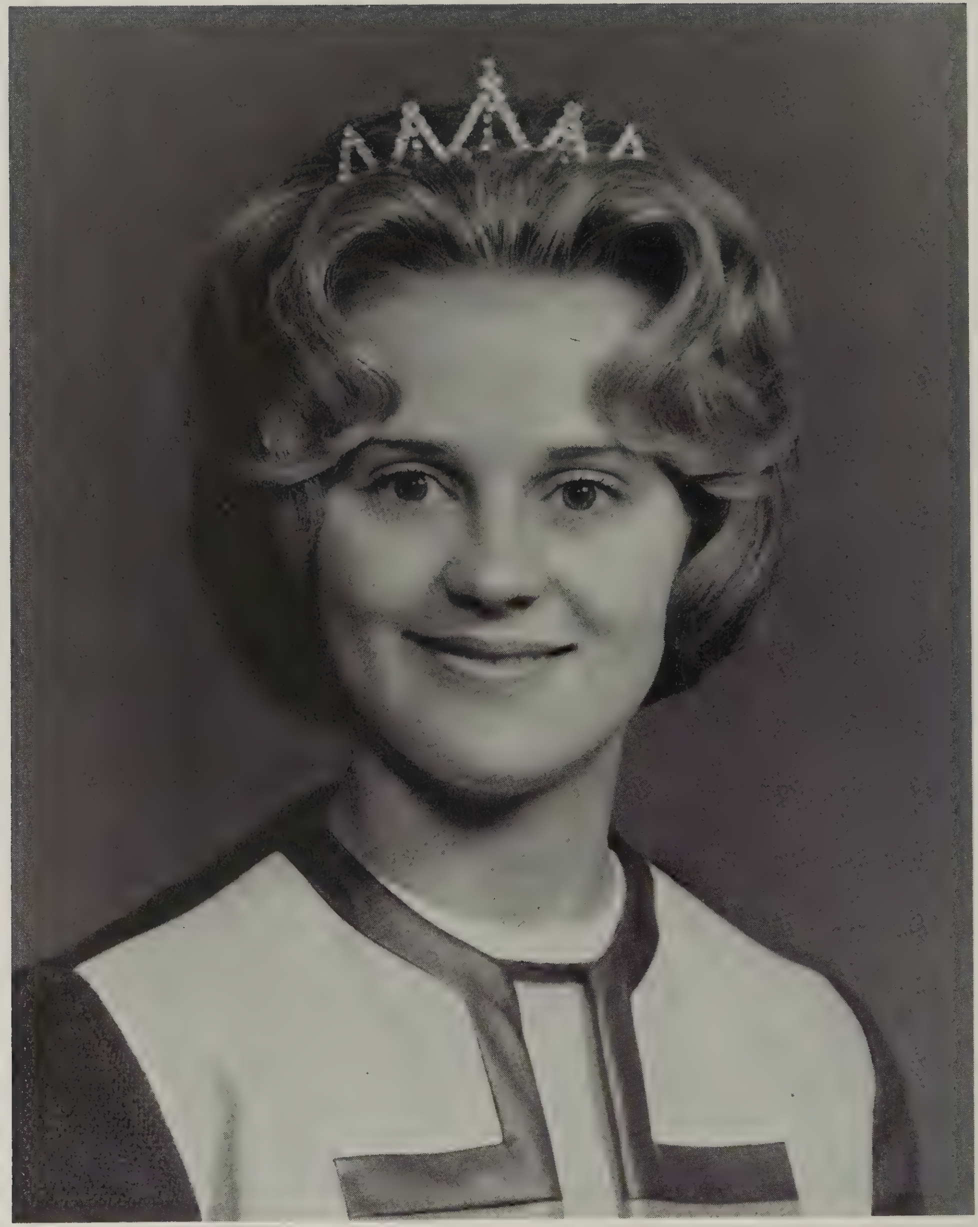
Maria Grazia Zanardi

Grace Zanardi, a vivacious Italian from Genoa, sparked the 1962-63 school year as John Marshall's first foreign exchange student. An enthusiastic supporter of Jayem activities and ideals, she participated in a number of school projects and organizations, including the SCA.

John Marshall will long remember Grace; she has enriched our scope of world understanding and has set a precedent for future Marshallites.



Grace admires birthday gifts from her Jayem friends.



MISS JUSTICE

Before hundreds of excited spectators at the annual John Marshall-Thomas Jefferson football game, Mary Halda was crowned Miss Justice, 1963, by her predecessor Sandra Townsend.

Later Mary exclaimed, "It was fabulous to be chosen as Miss Justice; I was very surprised and excited to win this honor!"

Mary is the MARSHALLITE representative for her homeroom, a member of the Spanish Club, Girls' Chorus, and Senior Follow-up Committee.

Other candidates for the title were Sherry Baroody, Julia Ann Dickinson, Judy Evans, Judy Pace, Jeanne Ritchie, Barbara Stevens, Becky Williams, and Kay Williams. Like Mary, they were nominated for outstanding school spirit.

Cheerleaders

"We're behind you . . . We're backing you up . . ."

The John Marshall cheerleaders, a group of enthusiastic girls, led this cheer and many others throughout the '62-'63 school year. Faithful to practice and ambitious with new ideas, these girls brought a satisfying feeling of spirit and unity to John Marshall students.

The squads made their first appearance on Orientation Day, striving to acquaint the new students with the school songs and familiar cheers. In addition to cheering at the football and basketball games, they led pep rallies to build school and team spirit. Posters and banners were made supporting the teams.

Both the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders set excellent examples of good sportsmanship.

TALENT SHOW

The Girls' Athletic Association presented its annual Talent Show on November 30 and December 1, 1962.

The master of ceremonies for The Unoriginal Amateur Hour was senior John Richardson as Ted Snack. Featured in the show was our foreign exchange student, Grace Zanardi, who sang an Italian hit song.

The German and Latin Clubs presented skits related to their respective languages; other acts were tap and interpretive dances, solos, and combos.

Thanksgiving Assembly

Appropriate selections by the choir opened the traditional Thanksgiving assembly. After this presentation the Reverend Robert Martin claimed the attention of each student present with a meaningful Thanksgiving message.

Every John Marshall homeroom filled and decorated a Thanksgiving basket to be sent to places where the need was the greatest.

Chip Robertson and Eleanor Brown decorate a Thanksgiving basket.

Christmas Assembly

A choral reading of the Christmas story and the enactment of the Nativity were the highlights of the assembly sponsored by the senior class. Adding much to the atmosphere, the choir presented familiar carols and seasonal anthems.

The program opened with interviews of various students, who explained what Christmas meant to them.

Choral reading by Linda Papa, Cornelia Jones, Harry Johnson, Janet Scholz, Paul Mushrush, and Butch Miller.

Diane Hansen, Glen Reynolds, Randolph Humrickhouse, Doris Dunkum, and John Cox trim the tree for the Christmas Pageant.

Sr.-Jr. Prom

On Saturday evening, January 12, 1963, the Senior Class presented the annual Senior-Junior Prom. The theme for the dance was "'63 Bourbon Street." A beautifully decorated, dimly lit gym and the swinging music of The Leaguers set the pace for a successful evening.

The Junior King and Queen, Steve Fornash and Nancy Long, who had been chosen by the seniors, were crowned by the former King and Queen, Chip Boggs and Tassie Bagley.

Steve Fornash is crowned by the '62 King, Chip Boggs. Billy Pollard seems to lend his approval.

Back the Bounce

In order to finance the exchange of students with other countries, the Student Cooperative Association sponsored the "Back the Bounce" drive, January 21-25.

Homerooms, classes and interested organizations, with a goal of $1300, competed for significant contributions.

The drive closed with a successful sock hop following the George Wythe basketball game.

Erin Simms, light director, and Paige Martin, scenery director, rest on the set.

Samuel and the Pirate King sing the plight of a poor orphan boy.

Mabel consoles the Major General as he grieves over telling a story.

Ruth and the Pirate King "persuade" Frederick to return to the pirate band.

The sergeant leads the policemen to fight the pirates.

The Pirates of Penzance

This year the Jayem choir and orchestra in cooperation with the art department presented The Pirates of Penzance, an operetta by Gilbert and Sullivan.

The leading roles of Frederick, an indentured pirate and Mabel, his loved one, were played by Ernie Stinson and Mary Ann Chappell. Other leads were given to Paul Harris, The Pirate King, Julie O'Bryant, Ruth, Steve Kirby, the Major General, Linda Cullers, Edith, Solveig Hegre, Kate, Martha Reynolds, Isabel, Jack Page, the police sergeant, and Lynn Blue, Samuel.

May Day

With her usual warm personality and friendly smile, Tassie Bagley reigned as 1963 May Queen. Kay Williams was chosen by her classmates as Maid of Honor.

A concert given by the John Marshall Cadet Band preceded the processional of the queen and her attendants. Following the crowning festivities, entertainment provided by the GAA was presented. Included in this program were gymnastic exhibitions and the traditional May Pole dance.

Members of the court help Tassie prepare for the big moment.

John Marshall has always advocated an increase in school spirit and participation. Through the creation of clubs, service organizations, and publications, a greater number of students have enjoyed both an educational and a profitable year as members of various organizations. The freedom to belong is the basis for the very existence of John Marshall's circles of activity.

Student Co-Operative Association

The Student Co-operative Association is composed of the entire student body, represented by the elected members of the Executive Committee. Selected as aims for 1962-63 were the purposes of the S.C.A. as stated in the John Marshall Constitution with various projects to carry out these aims.

The S.C.A. was responsible for five assemblies. A school seal and suggestion box were initiated, and John Marshall school materials were sold. Italian exchange student Grace Zanardi played an outstanding role in the work of the Executive Committee.

J.M.'s second drive for an American Field Service student was held January 28-February 1. The campaign, "Back the Bounce," had as its goal $1,350, for sponsoring a foreign student coming to America and possibly sending a John Marshall student abroad.

Library Aides

Members of the Library Staff, a school service group, are students who volunteer to devote a part of each school day to assisting in routine duties of the library. Any student who can meet certain scholastic requirements and standards of efficiency is eligible for membership. Since its objectives are realized through actual experience and service on the part of each member, this group has no officers or scheduled meetings.

Each student is trained individually in library techniques in order that he may perform his duties more effectively. Training is given primarily in early fall. By means of a rotating schedule, the responsibility of each person varies from day to day to include the checking of permits, charging and slipping books, collecting fines, shelving books, and running errands.

Service credits are given Aides who have performed their duties satisfactorily, and at the Awards Assembly in the spring they receive Service Award certificates if they have sufficient credits.

Science Club

Only two years old, the John Marshall Science Club has continued to pursue its goal of stimulating future scientists in the fields of physics, chemistry, and biology through extracurricular study and activities. Weekly meetings were conducted under the leadership of the faculty sponsor, Mrs. Betty Jones.

In keeping abreast with the latest scientific developments, the club invited a representative from Bell Laboratories to speak on "Telstar."

The club displayed its school spirit early in the year by entering a science float in the student homecoming parade. During the first semester plans were formulated for field trips and a project entry for the science fair.

The Science Club hopes that its third year will see an even greater enthusiasm among students interested in this field.

Para Medical Careers

The purpose of the Para Medical Careers Club is to further the interests of those students at John Marshall who plan a career in the field of medicine.

The club has tried to carry out its purpose this year by having many interesting and worthwhile programs on the various aspects of medicine. There have been programs on medical technology, medicine, physical therapy, and professional nursing.

During the year the club had several projects and field trips. For Christmas the members filled stockings for three small boys with muscular dystrophy. Many of the members also served as volunteer workers at several of the hospitals around the city. In November the club made a trip to the School of Nursing at the University of Virginia.

The year was climaxed by the Annual Para Medical Careers Club Banquet. Members of the various clubs throughout the city and the surrounding area attended. Pins were presented to members who attended at least 75 per cent of the meetings.

The Junior Red Cross, established September 17, 1917, by proclamation of President Wilson, was set up in 1938 as a service organization. The aim of this organization is to promote better understanding and good will internationally as well as to train young people to render service to those in the community who are less fortunate than others.

Carrying out its motto, "We serve," the John Marshall chapter has worked voluntarily at Richmond Memorial and McGuire hospitals and Medical College of Virginia. Another project was giving and packing chests for overseas children.

Girls' Chorus

The John Marshall Girls' Chorus is composed of thirty to forty singers each season. Even though its membership consists primarily of freshmen and sophomores, qualified juniors and seniors who cannot be included in the John Marshall Choir because of schedule conflicts are accepted. Members are chosen on the basis of vocal ability as well as qualities of cooperation and dependability.

The Marshallettes, a group of nine girls, are chosen from the membership of the Girls' Chorus. This ensemble performs whenever the services of a small group of girl singers is required.

During the school year 1962-63 the Girls' Chorus sang for the Easter concert and the Baccalaureate Service.

Choir

The John Marshall Choir is the principal performing vocal group of the school, representing John Marshall at all functions in the school or community when the services of a mixed choral group are required. It maintains a membership of fifty to sixty singers who are chosen on the basis of vocal ability, seniority, and willingness to co-operate fully in a group enterprise.

The Ritual Quartet is selected from the Choir and assists at each assembly. Members for this past season were Linda Cullers, Kay Williams, Ernest Stinson, and Lynn Blue. This year the Choir in co-operation with the Orchestra and the Art Department presented "The Pirates of Penzance," by Gilbert and Sullivan.

Orchestra

The John Marshall Orchestra, consisting of thirty-two members, is under the direction of Major Paul J. Cartwright. During the past year the Orchestra played in two assembly programs and gave a special concert for the PTA in February.

The string section of the Orchestra was host to and participated in the Twentieth Annual State String Orchestra Festival last November. Also, several members of the wind and percussion sections participated in the Central State Band Festival at Varina in February. The John Marshall Orchestra and Chorus joined with the Art Department in the presentation of "The Pirates of Penzance," by Gilbert and Sullivan.

Chess Club

This year the Chess Club played a great part in initiating the Central District Chess League. The league, which consists of the chess clubs of John Marshall and six other schools in this area, had done much to stimulate interest in the league. By February the Chess Club had participated in seven meets and was rated in fourth place among the other clubs in the league. The John Marshall Chess Club is privileged to have as a member, Alan Aycock, who was elected the president of the league.

The fact that anyone is welcome has made the Chess Club very popular. If a new member knows how to play chess his game is sure to improve since he will gain practice and experience; if he doesn't know how to play chess the club will teach him, and in little or no time he will be enjoying the game along with the other members.

FBLA

The Future Business Leaders of America is a national organization of high school and college business students organized for the purpose of developing character, citizenship, and patriotism.

At the monthly meetings prominent speakers in the community have given talks on subjects ranging from proper office wear to electronic data processing to parliamentary procedure.

As a part of the yearly activities, selected representatives of the 103 FBLA members participate in regional, state, and national contests. The John Marshall chapter has received many first and second place awards in these competitions.

Vocational Office Training

The senior students of Mr. Carl Jorgenson's Vocational Office Training class are "earning while learning." They receive pay for their office work in addition to receiving school credit toward graduating.

V.O.T. provides students with the chance to try out a real job situation and saves time in discovering their genuine interests and abilities. It assures them immediate full-time employment upon graduation with accelerated promotion. Moreover, it provides a variety of experiences which broaden their job possibilities and help develop a feeling of confidence in their own abilities.

Vocational Office Training offers an opportunity for participation in the Future Business Leaders of America, a local chapter of the national organization.

Distributive Education

The Distributive Education Club is a professional organization open to all students who are pursuing work in this field. A student in the D.E. program meets daily with his class, works a minimum of fifteen hours a week in some distributive occupation and meets with his club on Wednesday afternoons to increase his vocational understanding through field trips and guest speakers.

The four points of the club's diamond-shaped emblem represent vocational competence, economic literacy, social intelligence and leadership. The wrapped package in the center signifies a job well done.

Through an agreement among employers, school, students, and parents, the program places these students in a suitable occupation. Telephone operator, machinist helper, dental assistant, lab technician, and stock clerk were some of the positions held.

The District VI Convention, the Annual State Convention, an employee steak-fry, a car entry in the TJ-JM parade, and a Christmas party were some of the club activities this year.

The Girls' Athletic Association is an organization for all girls at John Marshall interested in sports, games, or dancing. Some of the activities this year included horseback riding, bowling, basketball, archery, apparatus, volleyball, and tennis. The G.A.A. also sponsors girls' varsity sports.

The meetings were held after school on the first and third Mondays of each month. At the first meeting a skit was presented to introduce the club to new girls and explain its background and activities.

The annual G.A.A. Talent Show was presented on November 30 and December 1, the theme being "The Unoriginal Amateur Hour." This was the principal fund-raising event of the year.

Key Club

The John Marshall Key Club is a service club composed of 35 boys and a sweetheart from the senior class chosen by members of the club. This organization is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Richmond, and its members are chosen for outstanding scholarship and leadership ability.

Mr. James C. Harwood, Jr., is the faculty sponsor, a position he has held for sixteen years. The club meets every other Tuesday evening at Second Baptist Church where supper is served to the members. Programs are varied and interesting and often concern various vocations.

Each year the Key Club sponsors projects to promote school spirit, raise funds, and provide for the enjoyment of the members.

The development of leadership, integrity, and self-discipline is prominent among the Hi-Y's objectives. During the year its members participate in an annual leadership congress, model general assembly, district conference, and local council. The club also supports numerous school functions and the International World Service Program. For the first time this past year the Hi-Y sponsored a Christian Emphasis Week at John Marshall.

Sans Souci

"San Souci," John Marshall's French Club, was organized for the purpose of promoting interest in the French language and of encouraging study of the French people and their customs.

Officers for this past year were Eleanor Brown, President; Jeanne Ritchie, Vice President; Elizabeth Rock, Secretary; and Mac Thompson, Treasurer.

The club entered a car in the J.M.-T.J. football game parade in November and aided the John Marshall "Back the Bounce" campaign by contributing to the American Field Service. Regular programs included movies, guest speakers, and skits on France and French life. One of the highlights of the year was the Christmas party with its usual large attendance. Dominique Stevens, French Foreign exchange student at Douglas Freeman, was guest of honor at this occasion.

"Sans Souci" enjoyed a very profitable year. It is hoped that French students will continue their support and interest in the 1963-1964 school session.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Jacqueline R. Tucker, the club members strive to promote the club's motto, learn about Spanish tradition and culture, and practice conversational Spanish.

This year's activities include a car in the JM-TJ parade, a program on Columbus given by Grace Zanardi, a Christmas party, a car-wash to raise money for next year's A.F.S. student, and slides and talks on Spanish speaking countries.

The Latin Club met the first Monday in each month. Throughout the term noted speakers talked on different phases of Greek and Roman culture. During the fall twenty-four new members were initiated into the club at a Roman banquet. In the GAA Talent Show the club gave a skit, "The Roman Crisis," written by Alan Aycock and John Burkhalter. The Christmas meeting, held at Mary Atkin's home, was a sumptuous Roman feast. Charades by Alan Aycock and "Peter Rabbit" by Cary Coleman with Lewis Walker playing "Petrus" provided entertainment. Young Americans Club

The purpose of the Young Americans Club is to set up a young people's organization which will permit teenagers to prepare for the responsibilities of citizenship.

Although the membership is open to everyone, students are required to have average grades, an interest in history, and an over-all good citizenship record.

The club has these main objectives: to promote patriotism among America's youth; to increase the knowledge and understanding of our nation's past and our part in the future; to promote a positive action by young people; to promote awareness among adults of their responsibilities as citizens, encouraging their participation in civic and community affairs; to prepare the youth of today to become active citizens of tomorrow.

Debate Club

The Debate Club of John Marshall, organized this year, was fortunate in having strong support of both students and faculty. Since the first meeting in November, the club members observed debates between Goochland High School and Douglas Freeman and attended the Central District Forensic Contest. At the regular Thursday afternoon meetings, practice debates were held and members studied styles and regulations for Central District debating.

The provocative topic for this year was "Resolved: That the U. S. should promote a common market for the Western Hemisphere."

Quill and Scroll

The John Marshall chapter of Quill and Scroll, International Honorary Society for High School Journalists, received its charter in 1930. Since that year the work on school publications by many individuals has been recognized.

To become a member a student must have the following qualifications: he must be a junior or a senior and in the upper third of his class in general scholastic standing; he must have done superior work on a school publication; he must be recommended by the advisor of the publication and approved by the Executive Secretary of the Society.

In addition the John Marshall chapter requires that a student have had 100 inches of copy and advertisements published in The Monocle or have sold $100 worth of advertisements for The Marshallite.

National Honor Society

About 1910 as the enrollments of secondary schools grew, many school administrators felt that more emphasis should be placed on scholastic endeavor. Thus the National Honor Society was founded in 1922 by the National Association of Secondary School Principals. Since that date the number of chapters has steadily increased. The John Marshall Chapter was chartered in 1939 and now has received nine hundred sixty-two members.

To become a member of the John Marshall Chapter, a senior must have an average of 90 or above on all his high school work. He must also be recommended by the entire faculty for character, leadership, and service to the school.

The Marshallite

This past year THE MARSHALLITE was published by approximately twenty-five students, who were required to sell at least forty dollars' worth of advertisements. Each day during sixth period the advisors, Mrs. Mary Burnett and Mrs. Eva Verelle, worked with these staff members; Thursday nights found Unit 3, the publication room, enlivened by the presence of Mr. Irv Schatzle, a professional photographer, who planned layouts with the staff and their advisors.

Team work on such a publication is necessary for a well-rounded, representative book. Not only does a yearbook profit by the pooling of student ideas but also each staff member learns to write precisely, to organize material properly, and to think objectively.

The Monocle

The Monocle is published bi-weekly except during holidays and examinations by approximately 30 students who have taken journalism in conjunction with English in their junior year. During the junior year the journalism class publishes two issues of The Monocle. The advisor, Miss Mary G. Lambert, selects the students to fill the staff positions which are announced at The Monocle banquet in May.

Working on the paper teaches students to write precisely, objectively, and idiomatically. It allows them to participate in a business enterprise under close supervision and teaches co-operation and public relations. In addition to all this, newspaper work can lead to life-long friendships as the student interviews teachers, counselors, administrators, and guests of the school.

Since the first issue was published in 1929, under the leadership of Miss Charles Anthony, The Monocle has striven to meet the highest standards for school newspapers. This past year The Monocle received the International First Place Award from Quill and Scroll and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association's Medalist Award.

Parent-Teacher Association

The John Marshall Parent-Teacher Association, having more than one thousand members enrolled, strives to co-operate intelligently for the promotion of each student's well-being. This year opportunities were provided for the parents to meet with the teachers to receive information about the objectives, curriculum, and achievements of the school. Genuine appreciation was expressed to the administration and members of the faculty for their patience, understanding, and skill as they taught every student the essentials of responsible citizenship.

John Marshall Evening School

OSCAR H. PARRISH, Principal

Since 1911 the John Marshall Evening School has been the tangible expression on the part of the School Board of a desire to offer everyone in the Richmond area an opportunity for educational advancement and vocational improvement. Through the entire fifty-one years, the policy of the school has been not only liberal, but also consistently progressive.

John Marshall Evening School offers a variety of courses to its approximately one thousand students currently enrolled. A number of students lacking only a few points to graduate have earned sufficient credits by evening study to obtain their diplomas. However the purpose of the evening school is also to enable high school and college graduates to take courses for pleasure, profit, and relaxation, which is evidenced by the fact that 1,690 high school graduates and 259 college graduates have attended during the last five years.

John Marshall Summer School

THELMA B. KEENE, Principal

A growing interest in summer school has accounted for a great increase in enrollment and subject choices. Students enroll for enrichment, special subjects, remedial work, and acceleration. In addition to regular academic subjects, classes in typewriting, art, instrumental music, industrial arts, and reading are offered.

From 1911 to 1933 free summer schools were held in Richmond, but as an economy measure during the depression they were discontinued. In 1933 a summer school for high school students was established on a tuition basis at John Marshall. From 342 students in 1933, the enrollment has grown to nearly 3,000 representing more than one hundred schools. Since 1961, summer classes have been offered in all high schools and in selected elementary and junior high schools in various sections of the city, making classes available to all who are interested.

Students leave after an exhausting day of Summer School, 1962.

John Marshall Athletic Club

The purpose of the John Marshall Athletic Club, now in its third year, is to promote and support football, basketball, wrestling, baseball and track. In addition the club rewards and encourages athletes, for it is felt that a boy who participates in sports along with excelling in his studies will make an outstanding citizen. A new aim of this group is to leave a permanent gift to the school each year.

In September 1962, the club started with the "old faithfuls," and as of February, 1963, it had 80 paid memberships plus other friends and supporters. The treasury had a very good balance from the sale of ads, football programs, and a fund-making project.

On November 30, 1962, a banquet was given for the football team. On March 23, 1963, a Winter Sports Banquet was given for the basketball and wrestling teams. In June a sports rally honored the baseball and track teams. At each event trophies and letters were awarded, and each cheerleader was presented with a memento.

For the first time the club was able to contribute to the athletic program as a whole. For the further training of Coach Hollingsworth's boys a "Bucking Sled." For the basketball players of Coach Anderson, and the spectators, the club presented an addition to the scoreboard—reversible name panels.

With more parent participation the Athletic Club can do a much better job. It is hoped that many more will join next year.

Cadet Alumni Association

Brigadier General Edwin P. Conquest, scholarship chairman, presents the 1962 Cadet Memorial Scholarship to Cadet Captain Thomas D. Mallory at Cadet Graduation.

Looking ahead to the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Corps of Cadets in 1965, alumni are appraising their organization and its usefulness. How does it measure up to past levels of achievement?

The goal of any alumni group is the betterment of the organization it supports. A golden anniversary fund-raising program for Corps projects is under way. The reprinting of "Customs and Regulations" through this program will answer a vital need. The fund recently provided a new fifty-star flag for use on the Alumni Field.

Each year the Cadet Memorial Scholarship Fund provides a $500 scholarship to college for the most outstanding cadet graduate. Miss Elsie McClintic, who completes twenty years as Corps sponsor this year, received a Certificate of Achievement in 1961; the 1962 award went to James B. Walthall, a past president of the alumni association. The picture of Lt. Col. Martin S. Ryan, 1957-1960, was added to the group of former commandants by members of the classes that graduated during Col. Ryan's tenure.

Miss McClintic brings former alumni presidents up to date on JM activities.

Cadet Alumni Band leads the grand march at the Reunion Dance the day after Thanksgiving.

The John Marshall Cadet Corps, a strong and reputable organization, has attempted to maintain the high standards of honor, personal appearance, conduct, and self-respect. Voluntarily the Corps members, realizing the value of their system, have undergone rigorous training and discipline. An attitude of self-improvement has provided the necessary atmosphere for a hard-working Corps of Cadets.

Honor Court

From the dawn of recorded history, honor has been the lasting foundation of civilization. One can recall the many duels that were fought solely in defense of someone's honor. It has been the way of life of all free peoples.

As a result, the Honor System at John Marshall, patterned after West Point and V.M.I., was founded to instill into each cadet a true sense of honor. The motto adopted to further this cause—Duty, Honor, Country—are, according to General McArthur, "three hallowed words that dictate what a cadet ought to be, what he can be, and what he will be." The Honor Court was established to assure that Corps members are instructed in the meaning of honor and to try those cases where the Honor of the Corps and a cadet are at stake. Cadets found guilty of a breach of the honor system are normally eliminated from the Corps upon recommendation by the Honor Court. The court is composed of the First Captain, the Adjutant, Company Commanders, and other cadets whom the court chooses unanimously. The membership never exceeds thirteen.

As an arm of the General Committee, the Recruit Court is charged with administering corrective action to new cadets who violate Recruit Regulations. These regulations have been designed to instill into him a strong sense of discipline, honor, duty, and responsibility, all of which are qualities necessary for his development into an acceptable cadet.

The success of the Corps from year to year, largely depends on how well the recruits are trained in the ways of the Corps. Anything bordering on softness will certainly reflect itself in succeeding years. Those recruits who fail to carry out their responsibilities in an acceptable manner are referred to this court for necessary action. If found guilty, penalty tours are assigned that are commensurate with the offense. Those recruits who continuously fail to live up to their requirements, usually those not amenable to discipline and training, are normally recommended for elimination from the Corps. The court is composed of the officers of the second class and the two ranking members of this class from each company.

The General Committee through the Honor Court has as its primary function the maintaining of the high standards of honor, conduct, and appearance in the Corps of Cadets. The committee maintains these standards by proper instruction of each recruit class, by additional instruction of all classes as may be necessary, by deciding on points of the standard not clearly defined, by calling to account those cadets who fail to uphold the standards, and by its own personal example.

A few excerpts from the oath of the General Committee will indicate what is required of its members: "I will—dedicate myself to preserve the high standards of,—serve the best interests of the Corps,—report breaches of standards,—through my influence and conduct work for a stronger Corps spirit,—forego my company allegiance when in conflict with the Corps.—To all this I certify my honor."

The General Committee is composed of not more than fifteen members made up of the Presidents, Vice Presidents, and Secretaries of the first, second, and third classes of the Corps, and other cadets of the committee's unanimous choice.

Hop Committee

Planning for the Hop Committee begins in early November when the volunteer cadets are divided into different sub-committees. Chairmen are chosen from among the cadet officers for each of these committees. A general chairman is selected for the over-all coordination and supervision of the decorations. He meets frequently with the chairmen to plan for all necessary details.

Finally comes the climax on the Friday night before the Hop, which is an evening of great bustle and hard work. The cadets rush to finish every detail of the decorations, concluding their task with the raising of the ceiling trimmings. This final act brings to a close the many weeks of planning, toil, and sweat that are to be transformed into a gala affair for the entire Corps and their guests on the night of the Hop.

The John Marshall Corps of Cadets' rifle team began its third season at the new school, under the leadership of its coach, Mr. Harold T. Theakston, industrial arts teacher. The team practiced twice weekly after school at the Sherwood Armory Rifle Range, firing from the three positions which are used in matches: prone, the easiest; kneeling, a little harder; and standing, the most difficult of the match. During the year the team participated in twelve rifle matches, two with each of the following teams: George Wythe Corps of Cadets, University of Richmond freshmen, West Point High School, Colonial Heights High School, West Point Gun Club, and the William and Mary freshmen. All matches were fired at the University of Richmond Rifle Range, except those with William and Mary which were fired there. Average scores for the members of the rifle team were:

Determination to win despite difficulties and good sportsmanship in the face of defeat have been responsible in many instances for the success of the athletic program at John Marshall. Team sports, such as football, hockey, basketball, and track, have encouraged mental as well as physical development. This past year saw an increasingly active student concern for maintaining a wide slate of competitive sports.

Football

The Justices opened a season of hectic frustration with a scoreless deadlock against George Wythe. The following week the Big Blue traveled to Petersburg and suffered their first defeat, the Justices only score coming when Ed Hubbard picked up a fumble and raced to a TD. After a week's lay-off, the Justices came roaring back with a convincing victory over Highland Springs, paced by Kendall Whitaker's three touchdowns. The next week Manchester scored on a blocked punt stand up for a close win over the Justices, followed by the Hermitage game in which the Panthers rolled over the Justices. Jayem played its best game of the season against Douglas Freeman but failed to outscore them. The succeeding week they completely dominated the game against Hopewell in every department except the scoreboard. Thomas Dale kept the Justices bottled up in their own territory, taking the winning decision, at the "snake pit" in Chester. Ending the season the following week, the Justices were handed another defeat by their long-time rival, T.J.

BASKETBALL

The Justices opened an expected winning season by defeating Hermitage in a thrilling one-second decision. The following game Jayem met with defeat against Huguenot in a heartbreaker with three overtimes. In the next game, luck was with the Big Blue as they defeated Hopewell after five overtimes. Following this game, Lane was added as another victory for J.M. Traveling to Highland Springs, the Justices met with great defense, thus losing their second game. An easy victory over Azaela's inexperienced team came next; but then Petersburg presented the Justices with an unexpected loss. With the big advantage of home court, Jayem defeated their arch-rival T.J. and proceeded on to pick up another victory against Douglas Freeman. The big win came when Coach Anderson's boys handed the Central District champions, Manchester, their first defeat of the season. J.M. chalked up another victory against George Wythe, butt then met with defeat against Douglas Freeman. Playing Prince George for the first time, Jayem easily came out on top. In the next game at Hermitage, John Marshall was victorious once more. Following this, an away game with T.J. was played, the Justices gaining an easy victory. Next, J.M. defeated George Wythe and went on to gain a homecourt victory over Highland Springs.

Track

Before basketball season was over, members of the track team could be seen working out in the halls. Track coach for the 1963 season was Wynn Gregory. Some of the players returning this season were Dickie Waters, running the mile; Larry Koch, and Kendall Whitaker, in distance runs; Gene Hare, a top-notch hurdler and leading in the broad jump; and Bootsie Howle, throwing the discus. Team ability and experience promised a successful season.

Wrestling

The John Marshall "Grapplers" opened up its second season of frustration and excitement under the direction of Ronald Reynolds and William Wilder.

The boys showed a great improvement over last year. Although the over-all record was four wins and six losses, they displayed fine ability and sportsmanship.

A banquet held March 23 climaxed the season. Receiving trophies for their hard work were the following boys: A. C. Taylor, Mike Alexander and Welly Sanders.

Girls' Basketball

The Lady Justices returned this year with an eager and capable team that worked smoothly under the guidance of their coach, Miss Helen McKenney.

The varsity team, meeting defeat in games with Thomas Jefferson, Collegiate, St. Catherine's, and George Wythe, closed the season with a record of fives losses and four wins. The varsity was sparked by Tina Prezioso and Diana Remine and efficiently managed by Sandra East and Linda Gibbs. The junior varsity ended their season with three wins and six losses. The team was reinforced by the skillful guarding of Sophomore Betty Mudd and Junior Jackie Bishop.

Although only three varsity players returned from last year, the team worked well together and was much improved as the season closed.

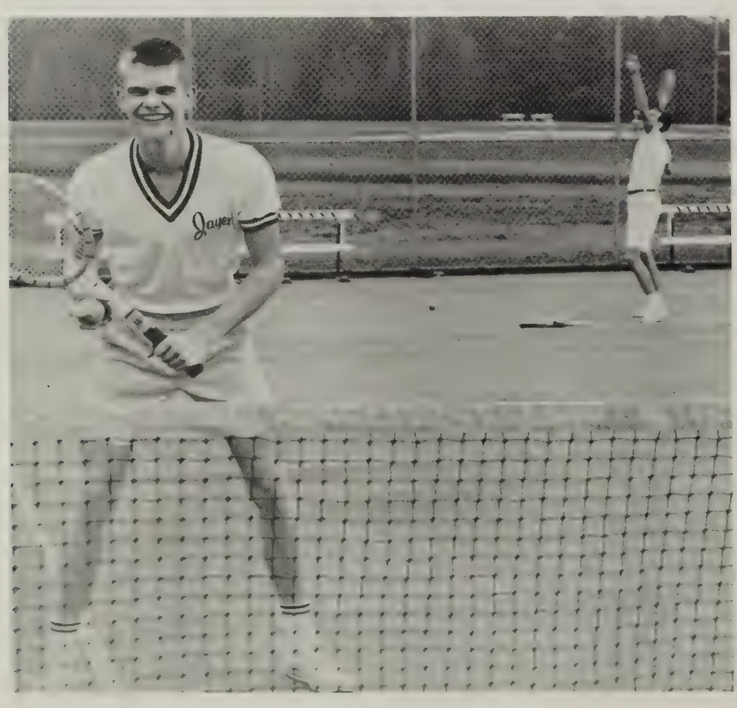
Boys' Tennis

For the first time since 1944, John Marshall has had an official tennis team. With the help of Mr. Fowler, the team's faculty sponsor, and Mr. Bowling, the athletic director, eight matches were scheduled. Saint Christopher's, Thomas Jefferson, Hill, and Douglas Freeman were each played twice. Even though the first seeded player, Chip Boggs, will not be here, the outlook for next year is promising, since nine players are returning.



Mac Thompson plays net as Pete Boggs prepares to serve.

Girls' Tennis

When the girls' tennis team was organized for its second year, each girl was placed on one of three different ladders, depending on her skill. If she had played before, she was put on the first or second ladder. If she was a beginner, she was given a place on the third ladder. The challenge is to try to work up to one of the first seven places on the first ladder in order to make the varsity team.

With the experience of the returning players the team has a bright outlook which, combined with their eagerness to promises to bring a winning season.

First row: Judy Sylvia, Betty Slipek, Caroline Garret, Jo Carol Sale Second row: Jo Keller, Lee McAllister, Julie Biaett, Jean Pratali, Terry Fahrner.

Perhaps the best example of the freedom to prosper lies within the publication department. With the money received from faithful patrons, advertisers, and school-spirited subscribers, hard-working staff members are able to capture within the pages of a shiny new yearbook high school recollections that otherwise would soon be forgotten. A capable business manager and the continued cooperation of the faculty and students have led to the publication of another volume in the life of a school.

OHN MARSHALL HIGH SCHO

LOOKING BACK AT JOHN MARSHALL, we realize that we have benefited from many freedoms in our relationships with students, teachers, and friends. As we continue to grow and develop in the likeness of good citizens, it is hoped that our lives may reflect those qualities gained through experience as young people.
